

REQUEST FOR BIDS INDICATION LOCK WORK WILL BE STARTED

Approximately Million Feet of Lumber and Other Material to be Used at Lock No. 4

OUTER LOCK THE FIRST

Understood That Actual Construction Will be Begun This Fall—Government Now Completing Lock No. 1

Bids for approximately a million feet of lumber and a large quantity of cement and other material which it is understood will be used in the first work of rebuilding Lock No. 4 here, have been asked by the United States government. That actual beginning will be made this fall on the work of rebuilding the lock seems certain, in spite of the fact that there has been no specific appropriation made. The Charleroi Lumber company is understood to have put in a bid for furnishing approximately 600,000 feet of the lumber that will be needed.

According to the belief of rivermen in close touch with affairs, preliminary work will be started soon on the construction of the outside or smaller lock. However, this work will not begin until Lock No. 1 now in course of construction at Pittsburgh has been completed. The government does its own lock building.

Although the smaller lock will be the one upon which work will be started, there will be no stop it is thought by many until the whole lock has been rebuilt and a new dam put in place. Part of the first work anyhow will be that of rebuilding the dam. The present dam is stated to not be in very good repair.

Concrete would be used in the building of both lock and dam. All of the present dam would hardly be moved. A concrete base would be constructed for the dam. That the operation would be an unusually difficult and costly one is evidenced by the fact that the river is deeper at Lock No. 4, than at any other lock along the Monongahela river, and deep water makes dam construction hard.

Last spring soundings were taken by government engineers at Lock No. 4, and they also made a new map of the property. The matter of putting in a siding at the lock property has been taken up recently with the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. This siding would branch off from the railroad at a point not many rods distant from the lower part of the present lock, or from a point nearly in back of what is known as the "cement shed." The railroad siding would be used for getting in the various materials, such as cement, lumber and so forth.

The proposition of building a lock when there is no appropriation to build it with is one that doesn't seem to worry the government engineers greatly. Lock No. 1, now being completed at Pittsburgh is understood to have been built without an appropriation. The work is done under an old act which provides a method of securing funds other than by direct appropriation for the specific work.

SPECIALISTS WILL BUILD CRANE BOAT

Important Work to be Done This Fall at North Charleroi Government Yards—New Boat to Cost Approximately $18,000

Specialists in boat building will begin work some time this fall at the government yards at North Charleroi on the construction of a new crane and quarter boat, to be put in service on the Monongahela river. Bids have been asked for already on lumber and other materials to be used, and as soon as they arrive the work will start. The new boat, which will be without self-propelling power will cost it is estimated from $15,000 to $18,000.

At the present time there is only one crane boat in operation along the Monongahela river, the Mary Ann, which for the last two years has been stationed at Lock No. 1, where the work of rebuilding the lock has been going on. It is under the captaincy of Capt. W. L. Kline, of North Charleroi.

In appearance the new boat will bear much similarity to the United States Steamer Slackwater, which has headquarters at the North Charleroi government yards. The principal difference will be in the propelling power, the Slackwater having its own power. Sleeping quarters will be provided for about 21 men.

Building a combination crane and quarter boat is no simple matter. In fact the work will be one of the biggest jobs ever undertaken at the North Charleroi government yards. Last fall a dredge boat was built. Constructing it was a difficult, costly, and tedious operation. The new crane boat will be even harder to build and more costly.

Crane boats are to the river trade what wreck train are to the railroad. They are needed in lock building, and in repair work where strong arm duty is necessary. A crane and quarter boat is a boat having a crane and all the necessary equipment that goes with a crane, combined with quarters for the boatmen.

Charleroi Eagles to Help Elect Him Head of Order Today

TO CAST EIGHT VOTES

Eight out of a possible nine votes will be cast today by Charleroi Aerle, No. 390 for Attorney William J. Brennan, of Pittsburgh, as grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, in session in Cleveland, Ohio. Brennan is the present grand worthy vice president of the order.

The fore part of this week John Jenkins, Frank Kline, John Hagenau, Patrick Acton, J. J. O'Connor and W. R. Gaut, all past presidents of Charleroi Aerle, left for Cleveland. Today Tax Collector J. W. Mathias went to Cleveland to be present at the convention. This represents with one exception the total voting force of Charleroi Aerle. George Newton, a past president is unable to attend. W. R. Gaut is the representative from Charleroi. He is in reality entitled to two votes, one for membership, making the eight out of a possible nine. Attorney Brennan is a popular man with the Charleroi Eagles, who are doing their level best to have him elected head of the order. There seems to be little doubt but that he will be elected, as there seems to be no possibility of a contest.

Architect to Have Blue Prints Ready Friday for School Building

SUPPLY CONTRACT LET

Bids will be asked this week by the Charleroi school board for the excavation work and stone work for the new Charleroi school building to be erected at the site purchased last spring on Crest avenue and Sixth street. Architect A. P. Cooper, of Uniontown was present at the regular meeting of the school board held Tuesday evening and announced that he would have blue prints prepared by Friday, when advertisements will be published for bids.

The contract will be let just as soon as possible after the bids are in, and then the school board will have one important matter cared for, and under way. Then they can go ahead unhampered on the bigger work of preparing for the building proper.

George S. Might, the local dealer, was awarded the contract for furnishing supplies to the school. He held the contract last year.

MERCHANT OF VENICE IN MOVING PICTURES

A Shakespearean production at the Coyle Theatre tomorrow night will be a notable feature. This is "The Merchant of Venice," which will be produced by a star cast of actors. Those who have seen this great tragedy in legitimate drama will at once recognize the possibilities of staging and scenic effects that motion pictures afford. As nearly every one who has any knowledge at all of English literature is familiar with the story and the strong passages of the play, the moving picture production will give added interest to the great characters—Shylock, Portia, Jessica, Bassanio and Antonio—roles which all of the great tragedians and tragediennes have essayed ever since the rise of the English drama as interpreted by the immortal Shakespeare.

LABORERS SCARCE IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT

Industrial Outlook Brightening Up—Fond Superstition of Presidential Year Panic Being Broken

LOCAL CONTRACTORS IN NEED OF MEN

This year will probably be the last in the history of the United States in which good times during a Presidential campaign will be regarded as anomalous. That the superstition fondly used as a campaign argument by certain elements that panics are necessary preceding Presidential elections, and must continue if the right man isn't elected, is breathing its last and that after the coming election it won't be a superstition, is the confident belief of business men. Attention has been called to the busy period which is now opening up.

In the east it is practically impossible to get men to man the big steel mills and other industries. In the Pittsburgh district, industries generally are operating to their greatest capacity. Up the Monongahela valley, practically all the mines and mills are running full time and it is practically impossible to get men. The Pennsylvania Railroad company is hiring new men all the time.

Hastings and Piper, contractors to do the State road work on Lincoln avenue extension, up McKean avenue are advertising for 500 laborers. They have two county road contracts, one at Bentleyville and one at Bealls-ville to do conjunctively with their state work. They state that it is practically impossible to get laborers.

At the Charleroi government building day laborers are being advertised for, together with brick layers, and responses are few. Both the Charleroi Lumber company and the Walton Lumber companies are busy. A number of men were induced to leave Monongahela recently, where they were engaged on road work, to go to Pittsburgh to work on the hump. They were being paid $2 per day at Monongahela, and are now getting $2.25 and $2.50 at Pittsburgh. As a prominent Monongahela man says, never before have laboring men received such pay.

A prominent steamship agent of the district says:

"At a conservative estimate 50,000 laborers could find employment in the mills, mines and other industries of the Pittsburgh district and there are none to be had.

"A great many men went back to Europe in the belief that the Presidential campaign would produce an industrial depression and they are not

SOPRANO MAKES BIG HIT AT CLUB DANCE

Miss Blanche Babbitt, Former Charleroi Girl, Sings at Eldora Park

Miss Blanche Babbitt, formerly of Charleroi, who for the last few years has been doing vocal work with metropolitan opera troupes, made a big hit at Eldora Park Tuesday night, when she sang at the dance given by the Winter Club of Charleroi. She rendered three selections, and had she continued responding to the tumultuous applause which greeted her would have been singing yet. Miss Babbitt sang "Oh, You Wonderful Girl," "Gabby Glide" and "Falling in Love With Someone." Her beautiful soprano voice was never heard to better advantage. There were about 130 couples at the dance, which was one of the most successful ever given by the club.

Investigation Conducted Into Coneghan Case at Belle Vernon

SMALL GIRL TESTIFIES

John S. Coneghan the Belle Vernon miner who was found dead, his body lying on the steps of the Belle Vernon school house Sunday morning came to his death from "causes unknown," according to a verdict rendered by a coroner's jury at an inquest held Monday afternoon at Belle Vernon. The testimony of 15-year-old Sallie Conner, who claimed she saw Coneghan fall over the railing of the steps completely changed the trend of investigation, and freed four suspects, who had been arrested in connection with Coneghan's death.

Mrs. Mary A. Barren said she identified one of the four prisoners as a man she saw fighting with Coneghan on the steps leading up the hill to the school house. Three times she picked the men out of the crowd, then smiling, short-skirted Sallie Conners took the witness chair and in a steady voice told the jury that she saw Coneghan fall over the railing which guards the steps. She said Coneghan was alone.

Dr. N. C. Lowman, who conducted the post-mortem examination testified that he was unable to state positively the cause of Coneghan's death. The four suspects, Mike Beman, William Sheets and Bert Finley were released from custody, following the investigation.

UP TO THE PEOPLE.

Col. Roosevelt's address at the opening of the convention of the so-called progressives at Chicago Tuesday serves to show most emphatically that the desired political progressiveness which he and his followers advocate is entirely at the volition of the people. While there are admittedly elements in both the old parties which seek political power for self interest, this cannot be truly said of the whole rank and file. Therefore the Colonel's assertion that the old parties "are husks with no real souls within either," which do not do anything for the people, is not found upon real facts.

One has but to look over the record of the Republican party for the last twenty-five years to verify the error of Colonel Roosevelt's statements.
Beginning with the passage of the inter-state commerce law, which was followed by the enactment of the Sherman anti-trust law, there has been a steady and progressive attempt to meet modern requirements and the issues of the day. Legislation on labor, irrigation, immigration, forestry, conservation of public and natural resources and other live issues have followed in the order demanded by the people. That none of these have been a panacea for every economic ill is of course true, but every issue on which the people have been united has been met by the political parties in power in both nation and the states, and an effort made to give the people what they desire.

A new party will bring about the same struggle of place hunters for power and privilege. The people have the power to get everything they want in the way of political action if they will but unite upon a policy. It is the indifference and inactivity of these people themselves which has permitted the reign of the political boss and the creation of machine politics, and this can be changed any time the people see fit to do it. Our own state is a striking example of what the people can do if they exert themselves. A new party will not materially change the situation, as the people themselves must decide what they want.

ANOTHER OBJECT LESSON.

The brutal crime at Manifold, in this county, whereby a young girl was assaulted and choked to death in a lonely spot in a rural district is but another object lesson of the inadequacy of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to protect the life of its residents. These hideous object lessons are occurring every day somewhere in the state, but this one, coming home to us as it does, makes a deeper and more horrible impression.
The fact that the wives and daughters in our commonwealth who do not live in an urban community with an organized local police force are constantly menaced by death in defense of their honor, is a sad commentary upon our alleged civilization.

This emphasizes once again what the Mail has repeatedly urged, the necessity of state rural police.
It was supposed the creation of the state constabulary was a step in this direction, but the smallness of the force, together with the policy of keeping it herded in barracks for the most part to be ready for an emergency has rendered it generally ineffective for rural protection. It is true that the force has been distributed at times in various parts of the state to do police work, which was good while it lasted, but the ultimate withdrawal of this force was the same as discontinuing a city police force after a time of comparative quietness. For the most part the rural sections of the state are more subject to lawless attacks than in the pioneer days when wild Indians roamed the forests.

What is needed is a mounted force of sufficient size for from two to four members to patrol the country roads of each township. The Mail has repeatedly urged this measure. If it is a matter of expense a part of the militia could be disbanded, as real-every day protection for the people is far more important than possible contingencies. The Manifold case alone is sufficient cause for widespread popular indignation over the inadequate protection afforded the wives and daughters of our commonwealth, but it is only one of many that occurs every week or so somewhere throughout the state. It is time for the people of the rural districts to rise up and demand that the state afford the protection to which they are entitled.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Robert S. Coyle, manager of the Coyle Theatre in Charleroi and Shady Grove Park near Uniontown, tells a story about a tramp who is supposed to have struck a Fayette county farmer for the privilege of sleeping in his barn over night. The farmer readily granted permission, and even went so far as to give the weary a blanket.
As the tramp was climbing into the haystack the farmer incidentally remarked that he was short of help in harvesting his oats crop, and offered the tramp a few days' work. The latter readily accepted, and the farmer departed, saying he would call the new hand in the morning when it was time to get up.

About 3 o'clock next morning when the tramp was getting in his best licks in slumber land, the farmer shook him lustrily, and shouted in his ear that it was time to get up.

"Time to get up?" queried the roadster, "what for? It ain't daylight yet."

"Yes, I know," replied the farmer,
"but we've got to get an early start on those oats."

"What kind of oats are they?"
asked the tramp, "wild oats or tame oats?"

"Why, tame oats, of course," replied the farmer.

"Well, don't you think you're taking an unfair advantage, buttin' in on 'em this time o' night?"

her interested, but the long afternoons

The other Sunday, after fighting about the house, she insisted on paying a visit to the home of one of her little companions.

"Oh, no, dear," said her mother,
"It is Sunday, you know. You mustn't go visiting on Sunday. Stay at home and I'll read to you. Here's a nice book of Bible stories. I'll read this one about Adam and Eve."

"Oh, Mamma!" replied the little one. "I don't want to hear about that at all. I'm so tired of those

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen the sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant,
"Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

OLD SORES, PILES, BURNS AND SCALDS HEAL VERY QUICKLY

W. F. Hennings, and Piper Bros. sell an ointment called San Cura that surely does do anything it is advertised to do or money back.

Thos. F. McCauley, Coopersville, Pa., cut his finger—blood poison set in—arm swelled terribly—friends despaired—said arm must come off. San Cura Ointment drew out water and dark pus—agony ceased—arm and hand soon as good as ever.

It quickly draws out all poison from sores, fever sores, pleases, boils, carbuncles, cuts, burns, scalds and bruises and heals without leaving a scar.

For itching, bleeding or protruding piles, nothing can equal it, while thousands of cases are recorded where eczema, tetter and salt rheum were cured in the shortest possible time. San Cura Ointment is 25 and 50 cents a jar.

Everybody should use San Cura Soap, it's antiseptic destroys all germ life, keeps the skin clear, soft and velvety, 25 cents. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

Cure For Hypochondria.

A young lady of Cardiff who fancied she was ailing went to the surgery of the family doctor and commenced the interview with, "Doctor, I'm dying." "Oh, indeed? I can recommend a very respectable undertaker," blandly responded the doctor. She felt quite well after that.—Cardiff Mail.

Very Funny.

Card Marks.

It is conjectured by some writers on the subject that the marks upon the cards designating the four kinds in a pack were originally symbolical and intended to signify the different classes of society. According to this supposition, the hearts represented the clergy, spades the nobility, some of packs of cards bearing a swart lance head instead of a heart, the serfs and diamonds the citizen class.

A STRUGGLE WITH A WIFE.

How Strindberg's Unhappy Marriage Colored His Work.

The extremely unhappy married life of August Strindberg is commented upon by Clayton Hamilton in the Bookman.

"At the age of twenty-six," he says, "Strindberg fell in love with the woman who was to exert a deeper influence upon his work than any other factor in his life experience. She was already married, but she obtained a divorce and married Strindberg. For a time their wedded life was happy, and the poet in this single sunny period of his experience poured forth an amazing number and variety of literary works conceived in the romantic mood. But a little later his marriage began to be disrupted by dissensions, and the domestic life became increasingly unbearable to both parties as the years proceeded. Held together by their children, they endured a life of torture until finally, after sixteen years, they abandoned the hopeless struggle and were divorced.

"This tragic experience has colored all the later work of Strindberg. He had begun by conceiving life as war, and he now discovered in his own case that love, which is the origin and essence of life, is also war—a year-long, lifelong battle without an interrupting truce. Hence he conceived love as only the obverse of a two-sided passion, of which the inevitable reverse is hatred. Other poets have made the same discovery. Compare, for instance, Mr. Kipling's harrowing lines: 'I ate you, grinnin' there.' * * * Ah, Gawd, I love you so!'"

Smothered Pig.

There is a fish in Hawaiian waters which is known by the native name of huananumukunukunapua, which means literally "sewing up the nose." The native Hawaiian method of killing a pig to be roasted is to smother it, not cut its throat, and it is smothered by sewing up the pig's mouth and nose. This fish with the long name has spines which in ancient times were used as needles to sew up the pig's mouth; hence the name more fully means "the fish that provides the needles for sewing up the nose of the pig."

The Morning Star.

The morning star, an iron ball studded with spikes and fastened by means of a chain to a short handle, was much used in medieval times as a military weapon. It was exceedingly formidable, for when thrown it could not easily be avoided or dodged, the chain permitting it to curve around the arm or over the shield. It was successfully employed after a common practice which grows in every part of Italy.

Modest Kit Carson.

Christopher (Kit) Carson touched the wild life of the west at more points than any other person, or any time. But he was always modest, declares a writer in the Century Magazine, and disliked anything which savored of flattery. One day in 1872 the great frontiersman chanced to stop at Maxwell's ranch, on the Cimarron river, in New Mexico, a well known point on the Santa Fe trail, when a regular army officer of high rank who was there exclaimed exuberantly:

"So this is the distinguished Kit Carson who has made so many Indians run."

Carson silenced his eulogist by quietly remarking, "Yes, I've made some Indians run, but a good deal of the time they were running after me."

A Dish of Potted Roses.

There was a time when Englishmen could celebrate St. George's day by feasting on roses as well as wearing them. Old cookery books abound in recipes into which rose leaves enter.

One writer tells how to make potted roses. "I first pound some of the most fragrant roses in a mortar. Then I take the brains of birds and pigs well boiled and stripped of every particle of meat. I then add the yolks of some eggs, some oil, a little cordial, some pepper and some wine. After having beaten and mixed it well together I place it over a slow fire. When this dish is brought to table the most delicious fragrance issues forth, covering the guests with delight." Every good housewife in the seventeenth century made rosewater, which was used for flavoring food.

Too True.

A popular clergyman in an address on generosity in New York said:

"A woman remarked to me the other day:

"Mrs. Blank is very shabby this spring. Mr. Blank adores the ground she walks on, yet he won't allow her enough to dress decently."

"Ah, madam," I replied, "it isn't always the devotedest worshiper who puts the most money in the collection plate."—New York Tribune.

MORTGAGES ON LAND.

Why It Is Essential That They Should Be Recorded.

As the value of land to the owner increases so does the security of mortgage investments given on that land increase. A mortgage may be considered as a deed of the land which reverts the title in the original owner or his successor on the paying off of the mortgage or the bond or note which the mortgage secures.

Mortgages are recorded in public offices, called registers, recorders or county clerks' offices, in much the same way that deeds are, so that any one buying the land is bound to take notice of them, and the land is taken by them, no matter to whom the land is conveyed, and no one has a right to say that he bought the land not knowing that a mortgage was on it, for he is presumed by law to know such facts, as a search of the title in these public offices would reveal.

If, however, the holder of the mortgage does not cause the mortgage to be recorded then any innocent purchaser of the land can take it clear of the lien of the mortgage.

In no particular has the law of this country gone further than in the effort to secure the title of the landowner and the security of the mortgage holder, and no investments are more highly regarded by the conservative business man than those founded on the imperishable surface of the earth.—Christian Herald.

UMBRELLA HANDLES.

In France They Shape Them as They Grow In Nurseries.

Most of the handles of canes, alpenstocks, parasols and umbrellas used in France are grown in nurseries. Ash, maple, oak, chestnut and other woods are used. In the early part of the first year after planting the young trees are cut near the ground to bring about the formation of numerous sprouts. The lower branches are removed, and only a plume of leaves is left.

Early in the spring the sprouts are subjected to a surgical operation. Their bark is cut, and the wood is carved in different designs, which are swollen by the sap and grow in high relief as the tree develops. Special instruments are used for the cutting and designing. Thus carved, the sprouts grow for three years.

At the end of the third year the forest of umbrella handles is cut, and the cuts are dried in the sun and then given a vapor bath, after which they are put into the hands of skilled workmen, who peel them with one quick movement.

When skinned the peelers cut them to the required lengths and send them to the umbrella maker, who varnishes them. If the shape desired is a ring or other open form a ring or oval or square is grafted to the natural stalk, bound closely, and left to grow into place Harpers.

Extra Buttons.

"It takes stout people to break all rules regulating the number of buttons on a coat or waistcoat," said the tailor. "They can't follow the fashion; their size won't let them."

"Three buttons on a coat this year, tailors' conventions may decree, or two or four or five, or whatever number they think proper, but the man with a figure that is constantly trying to escape its environment does not care about conventions. What he wants is buttons enough to keep his clothes in shape."

"Put 'em closer together," he says, "so the strain won't all come on two or three buttons."

"So we put them closer together and the result is that stout people frequently have twice as many buttons on their clothes as fashion calls for."—New York Times.

An Able Manager.

A western senator was telling a story about an able campaign manager.

"He is a remarkably economical chap," said the senator. "He can make a dollar go further in a campaign than any man I know. They tell a story about him—a story that shows what a manager he is. It seems he went into a cigar store one day to get a light. Well as he was lighting up a man entered and bought three five-cent cigars. As soon as the man left our friend said quickly:

"Those cigars are six for a quarter, ain't they?"

"Yes, sir," said the salesman. "Our friend had down a dime."

"Gimme," he said, "the other three then."—New York Tribune.

A Ghost Story.

A London daily tells a short modern ghost story. A man was traveling on a northbound train out of London. Opposite him was a silent stranger, his only companion. Between London and Derby no word passed. Then, as the train drew out of Derby, he said pleasantly: "Good line, this, sir, eh?" The stranger replied: "I think it's a beastly bad line. I was killed on it two years ago."

He Shouldn't.

A man with a donkey for sale, hearing that a friend wanted to buy one, sent him the following written on a postal card:

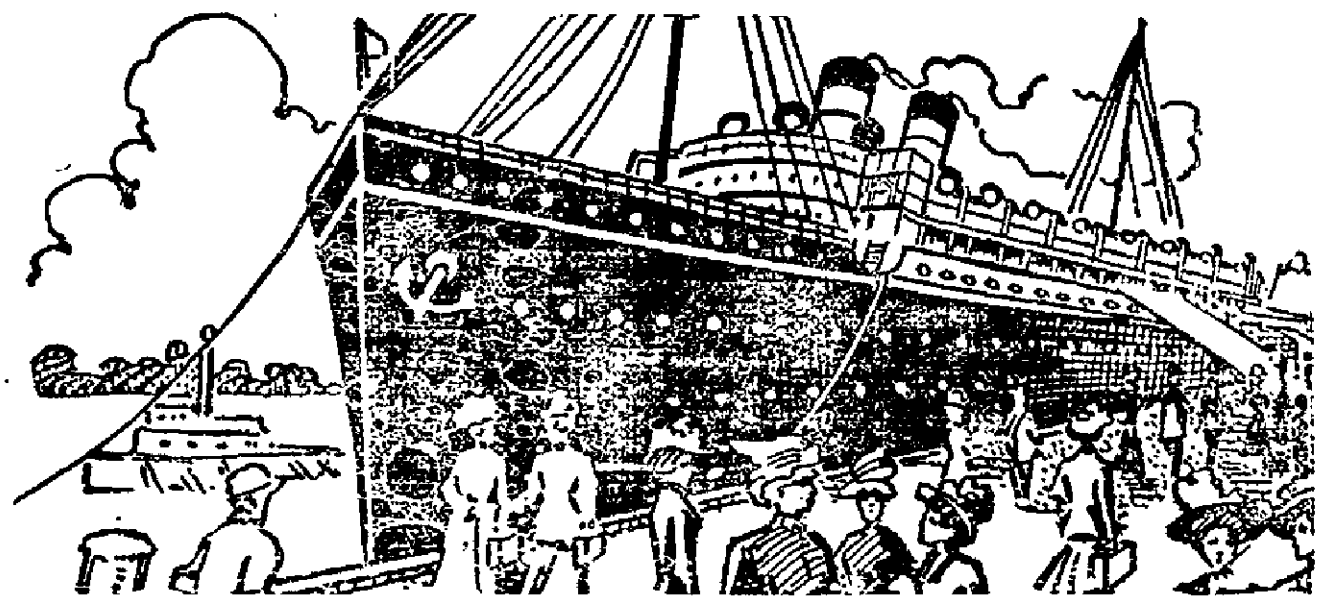

"Dear Jack: If you are looking for a really good donkey please don't forget me." Exchange.

Who never to himself hath said:

If such there be, go mark him well;

For him no bank account shall swell,

No angels watch the golden stair

To welcome home the millionaire

The man who never asks for trade

By local line or ad. displayed.

Cares more for rest than worldly gain,

And patronage but gives him pain,

Tread lightly friends; let no rude sound

Disturb his solitude profound,

Here let him live in calm repose,

Unsought except by men he owes

And when he dies, go plant him deep,

That naught may break his dreamless sleep;]

Where no rude clamor may dispel

The quiet that he loved so well.

And when the world may know its loss,

Place on his grave a wreath of moss,

And on the stone above, "Here lies

A chump who wouldn't advertise."

Advertise and the world is with you!

Don't and you'll be alone.

WASHINGTONS HIT BALL HARD AND WIN GAME

Bert Mitchell's Folks Too Strong for Methodist Aggregation.

STAHLMAN VS BRIGGS

There was a very considerable, peppery display of binging and a trifling bit of bungling with the advantage accruing to the Washington avenue Presbyterians at the baseball playgrounds Tuesday night. The result was a victory for the Washington Avenues over the Methodists by the score of 10 to 4.

Twelve hits were the total number the Washington Avenues got, and Briggs was the victim. Five of these hits came in the fifth inning and coupled with one error and two stolen bases resulted in half the total numbers of the Washington Avenues were scattered along through different innings.

Three hits in the third inning for double that many bases resulted in two scores for the Methodists. Two hits in the fourth for four bases, and an error counted them two more scores. Score:

INJUNCTION IN FERRY WAR

Van Speers Takes Action to Stop Rival From Operating at Speers

CLAIMS OLD CHARTER

The closing of the Bellevernon bridge for repairs has brought into dispute the right to operate a ferry from Speers to Belle Vernon, and as a result of the dispute a preliminary injunction was granted Monday Van A. Speers against Leslie Woodward and Mark Bamford, who have also been operating a ferry. The injunction was asked for through the firm of Mellvain, Murphy, Day and Witherspoon, and a hearing will be held Friday, August 9, at 10 o'clock.

Years ago a franchise was given Noah Speers to operate a ferry at this point, and the franchise provided that no other ferry should be operated within a mile up or down the river from that point. Mr. Speers conducted the ferry until 1905, when the Belle Vernon Bridge company opened its bridge for traffic. The franchise was then sold by Mr. Speers of the bridge company, who took care of the traffic.

Recently the county commissioners closed the bridge for repairs, and Van A. Speers secured a lease on the franchise from the Belle Vernon Bridge company to operate the ferry. He opened the ferry for travel on July 23, this year, and on the same day Messrs. Woodward and Bamford also started one. Speers claimed that these men have no authority to operate at that point while he has the lease on the franchise, and has brought the injunction proceedings to test this matter.

BIRDIE CREE OUT OF GAME BECAUSE OF BROKEN ARM

Frank Cree, better known in the baseball world as "Birdie" Cree a member of the New York American ball team, will not be able to play ball again this year unless it be the last month of the season, according to a letter which he wrote his sister, Mrs. Luther Delany of Waynesburg.

A few weeks ago Cree was hit on the right arm by a pitched ball and the bone was fractured. He is now spending his time on his fruit farm at Sunbury. Cree is much disappointed by being kept out of the game this season as his batting was better this year than ever before. He had played in 48 games and his batting average is .330, having been at bat 191 times and securing 633 hits. He is eighth on the batting list in the league and leads his team.

Cree is a native of Greene county. He was born and brought up at Khe-dive. He attended the California normal school, and has frequently played ball with Charleroi.

THREE ACRES OF BUILDING TO BE PAINTED

Practically three acres of buildings are being painted at the United States government yards at North Charleroi during a comparatively slack period. Approximately 1,500 pounds of paint and nearly three barrels of oil are necessary. Red paint is being used and the government men are doing the work.

The United States Steamer Slackwater returned from the vicinity of Lock No. 5 Tuesday afternoon, where it had been engaged in clearing up debris near the site of the old lock.

Two flats are now in course of construction at the government yards. They will each be 20 feet wide, 100 feet long and six feet deep.

OLD SORES, PILES, BURNS AND SCALDS HEAL VERY QUICKLY

W. F. Hennings, and Piper Bros. sell an ointment called San Cura that surely does do anything it is advertised to do or money back.

Thos. F. McCauley, Coopertown, Pa., cut his finger—blood poison set in—arm swelled terribly—friends despaired—said arm must come off. San Cura Ointment drew out water and dark pus—agony ceased—arm and hand soon as good as ever.

It quickly draws out all poison from sores, fever sores, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, cuts, burns, scalds and bruises and heals without leaving a scar.

For itching, bleeding or protruding piles, nothing can equal it, while thousands of cases are recorded where eczema, tetter and salt rheum were cured in the shortest possible time. San Cura Ointment is 25 and 50 cents a jar.

Everybody should use San Cura Soap, it's antiseptic destroys all germ life, keeps the skin clear, soft and velvety, 25 cents. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

Cure For Hypochondria.

A young lady of Cardiff who fancied she was ailing went to the surgery of the family doctor and commenced the interview with, "Doctor, I'm dying." "Oh, indeed! I can recommend a very respectable undertaker," blandly responded the doctor. She felt quite well after that.—Cardiff Mail.

Card Marks.

It is conjectured by some writers on the subject that the marks upon the cards designating the four kinds in a pack were originally symbolical and intended to signify the different classes of society. According to this supposition, the hearts represented the clergy, spades the nobility, some of packs of cards bearing a swastika head instead of a crown, the serfs and diamonds the citizen class.

A STRUGGLE WITH A WIFE.

How Strindberg's Unhappy Marriage Colored His Work.

The extremely unhappy married life of August Strindberg is commented upon by Christian Hamilton in the Bookman.

"At the age of twenty-six," he says, "Strindberg fell in love with the woman who was to exert a deeper influence upon his work than any other factor in his life experience. She was already married, but she obtained a divorce and married Strindberg. For a time their wedded life was happy, and the poet in this single sunny period of his experience poured forth an amazing number and variety of literary works conceived in the romantic mood. But a little later his marriage began to be disrupted by dissensions, and the domestic life became increasingly unbearable to both parties as the years proceeded. Held together by their children, they endured a life of torture until finally, after sixteen years, they abandoned the hopeless struggle and were divorced.

"This tragic experience has colored all the later work of Strindberg. He had begun by conceiving life as war, and he now discovered in his own case that love, which is the origin and essence of life, is also war—a rear long life-long battle without an interrupting truce. Hence he conceived love as only the obverse of a two sided passion, of which the inevitable reverse is hatred. Other poets have made the same discovery. Compare, for instance, Mr. Kipling's barrowing lines: 'I ate you, grinnin' there. * * * Ah, Gawd, I love you so!'"

Smothered Pig.

There is a fish in Hawaiian waters which is known by the native name of humuhumunukunukuapuaa, which means literally "sewing up the nose." The native Hawaiian method of killing a pig to be roasted is to smother it, not cut its throat, and it is smothered by sewing up the pig's mouth and nose. This fish with the long name has spines which in ancient times were used as needles to sew up the pig's mouth; hence the name more fully means "the fish that provides the needles for sewing up the nose of the pig."

The Morning Star.

The morning star, an iron ball studded with spikes and fastened by means of a chain to a stout handle, was much used in medieval times as a military weapon. It was exceedingly formidable, for when thrown it could not easily be avoided or dodged, the chain permitting it to curve around the arm or over the shield. It was confessedly modeled after a common fungus which grows in every part of Italy.

Modest Kit Carson.

Christopher (Kit) Carson touched the wild life of the west at more points than any other person of any time. But he was always modest, declares a writer in the Century Magazine, and disliked anything which savored ofattery. One day in 1862 the great frontiersman chanced to stop at Maxwell's ranch, on the Cimarron river, in New Mexico, a well known point on the Santa Fe trail, when a regular army officer of high rank who was there exclaimed exuberantly:

"So this is the distinguished Kit Carson who has made so many Indians run!"

Carson silenced his eulogist by quietly remarking, "Yes, I've made some Indians run, but a good deal of the time they were running after me."

A Dish of Potted Roses.

There was a time when Englishmen could celebrate St. George's day by feasting on roses as well as wearing them. Old cookery books abound in recipes into which rose leaves enter.

One writer tells how to make potted roses. "I first pound some of the most fragrant roses in a mortar. Then I take the brains of birds and pigs well boiled and stripped of every particle of meat. I then add the yolks of some eggs, some oil, a little cordial, some pepper and some wine. After having beaten and mixed it well together I place it over a slow fire. When this dish is brought to table the most delicious fragrance issues forth, covering the guests with delight." Every good housewife in the seventeenth century made rosewater, which was used for flavoring food.

Too True.

A popular clergyman in an address on generosity in New York said:

"A woman remarked to me the other day:

"Mrs. Blank is very shabby this spring. Mr. Blank adores the ground she walks on, yet he won't allow her enough to dress decently."

"Ah, madam," I replied, "it isn't always the dearest worshiper who puts the most money in the collection plate."—New York Tribune.

MORTGAGES ON LAND.

Why It Is Essential That They Should Be Recorded.

As the value of land to the owner increases so does the security of mortgage investments given on that land increase. A mortgage may be considered as a deed of the land which reverts the title in the original owner or his successor on the paying off of the mortgage or the bond or note which the mortgage secures.

Mortgages are recorded in public offices, called registers, recorders or county clerks' offices, in much the same way that deeds are, so that any one buying the land is bound to take notice of them, and the land is bound by them, no matter to whom the land is conveyed, and no one has a right to say that he bought the land not knowing that a mortgage was on it, for he is presumed by law to know such facts, as a search of the title in these public offices would reveal.

If, however, the holder of the mortgage does not cause the mortgage to be recorded then any innocent purchaser of the land can take it clear of the lien of the mortgage.

In no particular has the law of this country gone further than in the effort to secure the title of the landowner.

er, and no investments are more high ly regarded by the conservative business man than those founded on the imperishable surface of the earth.—Christian Herald.

UMBRELLA HANDLES.

In France They Shape Them as They Grow in Nurseries.

Most of the handles of canes, alpen stocks, parasols and umbrellas used in France are grown in nurseries. Ash, maple, oak, chestnut and other woods are used. In the early part of the first year after planting the young trees are cut near the ground to bring about the formation of numerous sprouts. The lower branches are removed, and only a plume of leaves is left.

Early in the spring the sprouts are subjected to a surgical operation. Their bark is cut, and the wood is carved in different designs, which are swollen by the sap and grow in high relief as the tree develops. Special instruments are used for the cutting and designing. Thus carved, the sprouts grow for three years.

At the end of the third year the forest of umbrella handles is cut, and the cuts are dried in the sun and then given a vapor bath, after which they are put into the hands of skilled workmen, who peel them with one quick movement.

When skinned the peelers cut them to the required lengths and send them to the umbrella maker, who carves them. If the shape desired is a ring or other open form a ring or oval or square is grafted to the natural stalk, bound closely, and left to grow into place.—Harper's.

Extra Buttons.

"It takes stout people to break all rules regulating the number of buttons on a coat or waistcoat," said the tailor. "They can't follow the fashion; their size won't let them."

"Three buttons on a coat this year, tailors' conventions may decree, or two or four or five, or whatever number they think proper, but the man with a figure that is constantly trying to escape its environment does not care about conventions. What he wants is buttons enough to keep his clothes in shape.

"Put 'em closer together," he says, "so the strain won't all come on two or three buttons."

"So we put them closer together, and the result is that stout people frequently have twice as many buttons on their clothes as fashion calls for."—New York Times.

An Able Manager.

A western senator was telling a story about an able campaign manager. "He is a remarkably economical chap," said the senator. "He can make a dollar go further in a campaign than any man I know. They tell a story about him—a story that shows what a manager he is. It seems he went into a cigar store one day to get a light. Well as he was lighting up a man entered and bought three five-cent cigars. As soon as the man left our friend said quickly:

"Those cigars are six for a quarter, ain't they?"

"Yes, sir," said the salesman.

"Our friend laid down a dime.

"Gimme," he said, "the other three then."—New York Tribune.

A Ghost Story.

A London daily tells a short modern ghost story. A man was traveling on a northbound train out of London. Opposite him was a silent stranger, his only companion. Between London and Derby no word passed. Then, as the train drew out of Derby, he said pleasantly, "Good line, this, sir, eh?" The stranger replied: "I think it's a beastly bad line. I was killed on it two years ago."

He Shouldn't.

A man with a donkey for sale, hearing that a friend wanted to buy one, sent him the following written on a postal card:

"Dear Jack, if you are looking for a really good donkey, please don't forget me."

He Wouldn't Advertise

Breathes there a man, with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
"My trade of late is getting bad, I'll try another eight-inch ad."

If such there be, go mark him well;
For him no bank account shall swell,
No angels watch the golden stair
To welcome home the millionaire
The man who never asks for trade
By local line or ad. displayed,
Cares more for rest than worldly gain,
And patronage but gives him pain,
Tread lightly friends; let no rude sound
Disturb his solitude profound,
Here let him live in calm repose,
Unsought except by men he owes
And when he dies, go plant him deep,
That naught may break his dreamless sleep;
Where no rude clamor may dispel
The quiet that he loved so well.
And when the world may know its loss,
Place on his grave a wreath of moss,
And on the stone above, "Here lies
A chump who wouldn't advertise."

Advertise and the world is with you!

Don't and you'll be alone.

STAHLMAN VS BRIGGS

There was a very considerable, peppery display of bingling and a trifling bit of bungling with the advantage accruing to the Washington avenue Presbyterians at the baseball playgrounds Tuesday night. The result was a victory for the Washington Avenues over the Methodists by the score of 10 to 4.

The Washington Avenues got, and Briggs was the victim. Five of these hits came in the fifth inning and coupled with one error and two stolen bases resulted in half the total num- scores of the Washington Avenues were scattered along through differ- ent innings.

Three hits in the third inning for double that many bases resulted in two scores for the Methodists. Two hits in the fourth for four bases, and an error counted them two more scores. Score:

INJUNCTION IN FERRY WAR

Van Speers Takes Action to Stop Rival From Operating at Speers

CLAIMS OLD CHARTER

The closing of the Belle Vernon bridge for repairs has brought into dispute the right to operate a ferry from Speers to Belle Vernon, and as a result of the dispute a preliminary injunction was granted Monday Van A. Speers against Leslie Woodward and Mark Bamford, who have also been operating a ferry. The injunction was asked for through the firm of McIlvain, Murphy, Day and Witherspoon and a hearing will be held Friday, August 9, at 10 o'clock.

Years ago a franchise was given Noah Speers to operate a ferry at this point, and the franchise provided that no other ferry should be operated within a mile up or down the river from that point. Mr. Speers conducted the ferry until 1905, when the Belle Vernon Bridge company opened its bridge for traffic. The franchise was then sold by Mr. Speers of the bridge company, who took care of the traffic.

Recently the county commissioners closed the bridge for repairs, and Van A. Speers secured a lease on the franchise from the Belle Vernon Bridge company to operate the ferry. He opened the ferry for travel on July 23, this year, and on the same day Messrs. Woodward and Bamford also started one. Speers claimed that these men have no authority to operate at that point while he has the lease on the franchise, and has brought the injunction proceedings to test this matter.

BIRDIE CREE OUT OF GAME BECAUSE OF BROKEN ARM

Frank Cree, better known in the baseball world as "Birdie" Cree a member of the New York American ball team, will not be able to play ball again this year unless it be the last month of the season, according to a letter which he wrote his sister, Mrs. Luther Delany of Waynesburg.

A few weeks ago Cree was hit on the right arm by a pitched ball and the bone was fractured. He is now spending his time on his fruit farm at Sunbury. Cree is much disappointed by being kept out of the game this season as his batting was better this year than ever before. He had played in 48 games and his batting average is .350, having been at bat 191 times and securing 668 hits. He is eighth on the batting list in the league and leads his team.

Cree is a native of Greene county. He was born and brought up at Khe-dive. He attended the California normal school, and has frequently played ball with Charleroi.
